

DEPARTURES

A full-page photograph of a surfer riding a barrel wave. The surfer is shirtless, wearing dark shorts, and is positioned in the center of the wave's tunnel. The water is a vibrant blue, and the wave's crest is white with foam. The background is a clear, bright sky.

THE DEPARTURES 100

Every year we meticulously assemble a compendium of the 100 people, places, and things worth knowing about now. As always, some are new, some are tried-and-true. But everything will matter in 2017.

BANISH THE SELFIE (ALMOST)

The new Leica Sofort is not the first instant camera to capitalize on our renewed appetite for tangible objects in this age of disposable digital content. But it is the best, thanks to simple camera technology that few have thought to bring to this field, such as customized focusing distance, flash and exposure compensation, and all the lens sharpness you'd expect from the German camera maker. It prints directly onto instant film, but unlike your old Polaroid it allows you to tweak your shot with a variety of scene presets, including "double exposure," "sport," and "selfie." Selfies might defeat the purpose, though: Its vintage look is meant to be admired, and its photos are meant to be shared. Physically shared. So long, Instagram, we'll send you a picture. $299; bhphotovideo.com.

#8 THE WOMAN OF SAVILE ROW

On the legendary street for suiting, a new name is above the door.

Since the early 1800s, London's Savile Row has been the epicenter of men's tailoring. There's Gieves & Hawkes at 1 Savile Row. Huntsman is at no. 11, Hardy Amies at no. 8, and Richard James is down at no. 29. And now a new face comes to the street—and, for the first time, the name above the door is a woman's. Kathryn Sargent has opened at no. 37. "Women haven't traditionally been encouraged here," the 42-year-old Sargent says, "but we've always been here. Behind the scenes, sewing, doing essential work." But before she was the first woman to have her name on the Row, she, as she puts it, "broke another mold" as the area's first woman cutter when she worked at Gieves & Hawkes for 15 years. And it's that apprenticeship that she seems to value as much as having her own business. "I'm not just a woman who opened a shop out of the blue," says the accredited master tailor, who is rumored to suit both Hollywood and House of Windsor royalty. "Anyone, male or female, who opens a shop on Savile Row has trained for a long time. So I'm first and foremost a brilliant tailor. If I were male, opening a shop here really wouldn't be international news." Suits start at $4,580, with two or three fittings and a four-month wait time. ## #87 WHERE TO SHOP IN 2017

GUCCI, NYC

The Florentine company's Fifth Avenue flagship has been fully reimagined by the house's creative director, Alessandro Michele. Inside the boutique, where earth-toned and tufted walls artfully clash with geometric-patterned marble, Michele reveals his new children's wear—trust us, adults will be jealous—as well as Gucci's new personalization service, available for bags and jackets. ### M5 SHOP, NYC

Michael Burns's downtown showroom is now open to non-fashion professionals. The former executive (Moncler, Belstaff) has begun offering by-appointment shopping in his space, with labels loved by insiders such as Herno and Stone Island. m5shop.nyc

EL PALACIO DE HIERRO, MEXICO CITY

The largest department store in Latin America, El Palacio also has expansive Chanel and Louis Vuitton in-shops. With a $300 million facelift—and an exclusive collection from Carolina Herrera—El Palacio is now a global fashion player. soytotalmentepalacio.com

PLATFORM, LOS ANGELES

Right between Beverly Hills and Santa Monica, Hayden Tract is L.A.'s newest shopping and food area. Platform shopping center opened last year—a very SoCal place to find the eco-friendly label Reformation and hyperfocused men's store Magasin. platformla.com

10 CORSO COMO, NYC

After expanding beyond Milan into Asia, legendary Italian fashion editor Carla Sozzani brings her menagerie-cum-boutique to the Seaport district. Look for Alaïa, Lacoste, and Ferragamo in the Kris Ruhs-designed space. 10corsocomo.com

A WINE COUNTRY STAY

When Las Alcobas opened in California's Napa Valley in December, the St. Helena hotel became one of only a handful in the region to actually overlook a vineyard. "It's surprising how few do," says managing partner Samuel Leizorek. "The view of Beringer vineyard is my favorite part of the property."

There are expansive terraces in each of the 68 rooms, many of which come with an outdoor fireplace, daybed, and soaking tub. A sister property of the original in Mexico City, the Luxury Collection hotel also has a restaurant by chef Chris Cosentino of the Bay Area's Cockscomb. Rooms from $695; 1915 Main St.; 707-320-8922.
