The moon will have some competition this summer as several cities around the globe gear up for their annual after dark light festivals. From Vancouver to Sydney, all eyes will be focused on the millions of colorful lights illuminating bridges, skyscrapers, cathedrals, rivers and more around the world. Here are five eye-popping light festivals that are sure to catch your attention this summer.

Vivid Sydney, Sydney, Australia (May 26 - Jun. 17)

(BridgeClimb Sydney)

From an illuminated dance floor perched high atop the Sydney Harbor Bridge that looks like it was ripped from the days of disco, to a menagerie of gigantic animal light sculptures at Taronga Zoo, there's no object too big or too small to be lit up during Vivid Sydney. As was the case in previous years, the world's largest festival of projected lights will take over the cityscape of Sydney for 23 nights of spectacular shows, concerts and other innovative events. New this year and already generating buzz: an array of colorful installations planned throughout Barangaroo, a hip neighborhood on the city's northwestern edge, such as "Day in the Light," an outdoor theater that blends light and sound resulting in a multidimensional experience.
