The Pearl District

This shoppers' paradise is packed with boutiques of every flavor. Powell's Books, the world's largest indie bookstore, is a must, as is the all-local Made Here PDX (right). P.S. There's no sales tax in Oregon! explorethepearl.com

Bistro Agnes

Snag a table at this downtown bistro for top-rate French fare from James Beard Award winners Greg Denton (above) and his wife, Gabrielle. bistroagnes.com

Portland Japanese Garden

Don't miss the cultural center at this Washington Park gem (above); it was designed by celebrated Japanese architect Kengo Kuma and houses a glass-walled tea café. japanesegarden.org

Distillery Row

You can walk and sip your way through Portland's craft-spirits scene with eight distilleries and tasting rooms within a 20-block radius. Taste fruity vodkas (below) at Wild Roots, aquavit at House Spirits Distillery, and small-batch whiskeys at Eastside Distilling. distilleryrowpdx.com

BOOK IT!

PUMPED ABOUT Portland

This Pacific Coast culinary hub shows no signs of slowing. Here's where to eat and drink and take a breather in between. —DANIELLE CENTONI

EVEN 20 YEARS AGO, YOU COULD FEEL ELECTRICITY IN THE AIR IN PORTLAND. IT'S NO SURPRISE IT'S BECOME SUCH A HAPPENING FOOD CITY. —RACH

Stumptown Coffee

Dive into the city's caffeine culture with a free hour-long Friday afternoon tasting at Stumptown headquarters. The Portland-based brewer helped kick off America's artisanal-coffee movement nearly 20 years ago, and it's still the crema of the crop. stumptowncoffee.com

Jupiter Hotel

Housed in a renovated motor inn in the Central Eastside, this boutique hotel has a hipster vibe and easy access to live tunes: The renowned Doug Fir Lounge is right next door. jupiterhotel.com
